Fault for Abuse Reaches Top

Abu Ghraib report lays partial blame on Rumsfeld, others

WASHINGTON | The blame for abuses at Iraq's Abu Ghraib prison lies mainly with the American soldiers who ran the notorious jail, but senior commanders and top-level Pentagon officials including Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld can be faulted for failed leadership and oversight, an independent commission said Tuesday.

"There was chaos at Abu Ghraib," said James R. Schlesinger, who headed the four-person commission appointed by Rumsfeld.

The report described the abuse as "acts of brutality and purposeless sadism," and said that the soldiers involved were not acting on approved orders or policies.

On the other hand, the report contradicts the Bush administration's assertion that the problem was limited to a few soldiers acting on their own. So far, seven military police soldiers have faced criminal charges; two dozen or more military intelligence soldiers may also be charged, but it appears increasingly unlikely that top commanders will be disciplined.

The report is one of several that have examined the abuse scandal, which rocked the Bush administration and triggered calls by some in Congress for Rumsfeld to resign. It is the first to point blame at Rumsfeld and Gen. Richard Myers, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, noting a failure of senior leaders to establish clear guidelines on permissible techniques for interrogating detainees. ROBERT BURNS (AP)

Soda May Raise Risk Of Diabetes

CHICAGO | Women who drink more than one sweetened soft drink a day are slightly more likely to develop diabetes than women who drink less than one a month, a new study finds.

Obesity is strongly linked to type 2 diabetes — the most common form of the disease — so the extra calories from soda account for at least some of the increased risk, said the Harvard researchers who did the study, which appears in Tuesday's Journal of the American Medical Association. But the scientists said there also appears to be a link to the way the body handles sugars in soft drinks.

Researchers found that women drinking one or more sugar-sweetened soft drinks a day were twice as likely to develop diabetes as women who drank fewer than one a month. Even when they considered such factors as weight, diet and lifestyle differences, the researchers still found that women drinking sugary sodas were 1.3 times as likely to develop diabetes.

A soft drink trade group said the study's conclusions were not scientifically sound and that the focus should be on unhealthy lifestyles and weight gain that can lead to diabetes — not soft drinks. TARA BURGHART (AP)

A Groom's Gloom

New charges are likely against a man who showed up drunk at a wedding in Lyndeborough, N.H., and injured the groom Saturday, police said. Brian Lithgow, 43, ended up driving his car over the groom's foot, police said. Police Chief James Basinas said Lithgow drove up and down the road in his truck, drunk and angry. He said the groom stopped him to ask him to leave, but Lithgow didn't until he ran over the groom's foot with his truck. Lithgow was charged with assault, drunken driving and driving with a suspended license. Police didn't detail the new charges Lithgow could face. (AP)

Protest on Wheels

Joshua Kinberg spent a year turning his bicycle into a mobile protest machine ready to take on the Republican National Convention. The former bike messenger helms bikesagainstub.com, a Web site that will invite visitors to contribute thoughts about President George Bush. Kinberg, 25, will receive the thoughts as SMS messages on a cell phone mounted on his bike's handlebars. The phone is connected to a chalk printer on the bike that sprays letters that look like the sidewalk version of skywriting. As rider and moderator, Kinberg will pick the messages that meet his criteria and spray them on the streets of New York during the Aug. 30-Sept. 3 convention. (AP)

Detainee Tribunals Begin

Osama bin Laden's driver formally charged by U.S. military panel

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, CUBA | Osama bin Laden's chauffeur was formally charged Tuesday at the first U.S. military tribunal to convene since World War II, and the defendant's lawyer quickly challenged the panel's ability to serve and questioned the proceeding's fairness.

Salim Ahmed Hamdan, a 34-year-old Yemeni, declined to enter a plea until motions filed by his military-appointed lawyer attacking the legality of the proceeding are decided, probably in November.

Hamdan, who was not shackled and wore a flowing white robe, smiled occasionally as he listened to an Arabic interpreter through headphones, even after hearing charges es that could bring life in prison: conspiracy to commit war crimes, including attacking civilians, murder and terrorism. He isn't charged with any specific violent act.

His lawyer, Lt. Cmdr. Charlie Swift, challenged the right of five panel members and an alternate to serve. The challenges now go to the appointing authority, John D. Altenburg Jr., a retired Army general, to decide whether any of the commission members should be removed. It was unclear how soon he might rule. PAISLEY DODDS (AP)

Rumsfeld Testimony Bid Nixed

Judge in Iraq prison abuse case rejects call to talk to defense chief

MANNEIM, GERMANY | The U.S. military judge hearing charges of prisoner abuse at Baghdad's Abu Ghraib prison rejected a request Tuesday for Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld to submit to an interview, but said he would reconsider if the defense could show a Rumsfeld link to the case.

Judge Col. James Pohl also suggested he would compel top military intelligence commanders to testify unless prosecutors move forward with criminal charges against them by Sept. 17. So far, the commanders have refused to testify on grounds they could incriminate themselves.

The request to interview Rumsfeld and his deputy Stephen Cambone came from a lawyer for defendant Spc. Javal Davis at a pre-trial hearing. The judge said it could be brought back if the defense can fill in some gaps.

Davis and the five other military police accused of abusing prisoners insist they were following orders from military intelligence officers and civilian contractors. (AP)

Kerry Blasts Attack Tactics

Democrat says GOP is using 'fear and smear' to distract from issues

NEW YORK | Democrat John Kerry accused Republicans of "fear and smear" attacks and urged them to turn their focus to the problems facing voters Tuesday as an effort by anti-Kerry Vietnam veterans continued to roil the presidential campaign.

Kerry sought to turn the campaign debate back to issues on which he thinks he can win — and away from questions raised by fellow veterans about his honesty in recounting his service in the Vietnam War.

Alleged Hamas figure in custody after taking video of Md. structure

BALTIMORE | A man described by federal authorities as an assistant to a top Hamas operative was arrested by Maryland police after he was seen using a video camera to record close-up shots of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge, authorities said Tuesday.

Ismael Selim Elbarasse of Annandale, Va., suspected by federal authorities of having financial ties to the Palestinian terrorist group Hamas, was arrested Friday after two off-duty Baltimore County police officers saw him taping the bridge from a sport utility vehicle, said Marcia Murphy, a spokeswoman for the U.S. attorney's office in Baltimore.

Elbarasse was not charged with a crime but was detained on a material witness warrant issued earlier by the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago, Murphy said. (AP)

Iraqi Troops Near Disputed Shrine

Minister threatens raid as strength of militant force seems diminished

NAJAF, IRAQ | A Shiite insurgency appeared to be weakening Tuesday night as Iraqi forces moved to within 200 yards of the revered Imam Ali Shrine and Iraq's defense minister once again demanded fighters loyal to a radical cleric surrender or face a violent raid.

The militant force, which once waged fierce battles with U.S. troops throughout the Old City and Najaf's vast cemetery, seemed considerably diminished in number and less aggressive after days of U.S. airstrikes and relentless artillery pounding.

Hundreds of insurgents have been spotted leaving Najaf in recent days, witnesses said. Those that remained appeared to have pulled back to the area around the shrine, where the fighting Tuesday was concentrated, U.S. troops said.

Police say radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr, who has not been seen in public for days, has fled the city.

His aides, however, vigorously denied that, saying al-Sadr was in a secret hideout here. Regardless, the fiery, charismatic cleric's absence from the battlefield may have withered his followers' morale.

U.S. warplanes bombed the Old City late Tuesday for the third night in a row, witnesses reported. Huge blasts rumbled throughout the city for about 10 minutes followed by gunbattles and smaller explosions.

Iraqi forces combed through the neighborhood, approaching as close as 200 yards to the shrine, controlled by militants loyal to al-Sadr. ABDUL HUSSEIN AL-OBEIDI (AP)

Airliner Crashes In Russia

MOSCOW | A Russian airliner crashed south of Moscow, and controllers lost contact with a second passenger jet at about the same time after both took off from Moscow, the ITAR-Tass news agency reported Wednesday. There was no word on survivors.

Nearly 90 people were reported to have been aboard the two aircraft. Witnesses reported seeing an explosion before the plane crashed about 125 miles south of Moscow, and authorities were not ruling out terrorism, the agency said.

The Interfax news agency said emergency workers spotted a fire about 600 miles south of Moscow in the region where the second plane went missing.

President Vladimir Putin has ordered the Federal Security Service to investigate. (AP)

Israel: Gaza Pullout Plan Ready Soon

JERUSALEM | Israel's defense minister, undaunted by growing resistance within the ruling party to a planned pullout from the Gaza Strip, said Tuesday that the army's blueprint for the withdrawal will be ready next month.

Gaza settlers charged that the government is already preparing to throw them out of their homes.

Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon hopes to carry out the Gaza pullout next year, but it has sparked an internal uprising by hard-liners within his Likud Party.

The resistance has raised questions over whether Sharon can carry out the withdrawal without his government collapsing. Hard-line opposition has already cost Sharon his parliamentary majority, leaving him somewhat vulnerable to no-confidence votes. (AP)

Red Cross Plans Airlift for Darfur

Group to fly six Sudan trips to restock troubled region with supplies

AL-FASHER, SUDAN | The International Committee of the Red Cross said Tuesday it was mounting a major airlift of relief supplies to Sudan's troubled Darfur region, its largest such operation since the war in Iraq.

Sudan's interior minister, meanwhile, said a cease-fire with rebel factions in Darfur was violated twice on the opening day of peace talks that aim to bring an end to the crisis.

The United Nations terms Darfur the world's worst humanitarian crisis. More than 30,000 people have been killed and 1.4 million forced to flee their homes in the 18 months of fighting between African rebel groups and Arab militia known as the Janjaweed.

Announcing plans to launch a major airlift to the region, the Red Cross said it was planning six trips by Sept. 5.

Earlier Tuesday, British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw toured a sprawling desert camp housing 40,000 displaced people and urged the Sudanese government to do more to make it safe for the frightened refugees to return home.

Straw, whose country has veto power on the Security Council, said officials should be in a position by week's end to decide whether Khartoum had made sufficient progress to avoid sanctions.

LONDON | Thousands of disgruntled vacationers were stranded at Heathrow Airport on Tuesday after British Airways canceled scores of flights because of staff shortages and technical hitches.

Passengers at Europe's busiest airport slept on benches, joined long lines to rebook their flights or simply gave up and returned home as the airline grounded 56 flights over two days.

The airline said it was short about 120 staff at Heathrow. Several airline staff members left unexpectedly at the beginning of the summer and large numbers were away on sick leave, a spokesman said. British

The SEC and the oil giant announced that the settlement, which the company agreed to in principle last month, has been made formal. The world's third-largest publicly traded oil company also agreed to spend $5 million on an internal compliance program.

The $120 million civil fine is the third-largest imposed by the SEC for alleged accounting fraud, behind WorldCom Inc.'s agreement to pay investors $500 million in May 2003, and $150 million in a fine and restitution by Bristol-Myers Squibb Co. announced earlier this month. Royal Dutch/Shell neither admitted to nor denied wrongdoing, but did agree to refrain from future violations of securities laws. (AP)

SO MANY CHOICES: Customers peruse the selection at the first Krispy Kreme in Washington, which opened Tuesday morning.

A Glazed-Over Welcome

Hundreds line up for Krispy Kreme's D.C. debut

WASHINGTON | For a die-hard legion of Krispy Kreme fans who spent the night on a sidewalk in Dupont Circle, the payoff finally arrived at around 5:30 a.m. Tuesday — free doughnuts.

It was at least a little bittersweet, though, for Rami Genauer, a D.C. writer who endured a 13-hour wait to become the first in line at the city's first Krispy Kreme shop. His prize: a dozen doughnuts every week for the next year.

As an orthodox Jew, Genauer said he'll have to wait for the shop to be deemed kosher before fully savoring his victory. The store's manager said that could happen this week.

By about 5:30 a.m., when free treats were dished out, the line swirled around the store at 1350 Connecticut Ave. NW.

The official opening was pushed back to 10:30 a.m., due to a delay in obtaining the certificate of occupancy. Once the doors opened, sugar-seekers rushed in. "People are a little hungry and impatient," said Ed Jones, 42, of D.C., who bought 24 glazed doughnuts — "one dozen for me, one dozen for the office."

Va. Police Kick Off Anti-Gang Effort

MANASSAS, VA. | As students return to school, law enforcement agencies in northern Virginia are launching a sweeping education plan of their own, hoping to enlist parents and kids in the fight against gangs.

More than two dozen law enforcement and education officials from across the region announced Tuesday the start of the "Join Gangs — You Lose" program, adding prevention to the work the gang task force has been doing on enforcement.

The push includes TV and radio spots in English and Spanish, and brochures in both languages will be handed out, detailing signs of gang activity.

Police have also set up a 24-hour tip line, 1-866-NO-GANGS. (AP)

Tenant Accused of Killing Md. Landlord

CHEVY CHASE, MD. | Montgomery County Police have charged a 38-year-old woman with killing her Chevy Chase landlord, even though authorities have not found the woman's body.

Susan Lynn Sachs, 38, was arrested Monday and charged with murdering Dr. Joyce Hadl, 71, who lived on Washington Avenue.

Police searched Hadl's room and found evidence of a violent crime, but would not comment on what that evidence was. (AP)

Lost Innocence

As PG-13 turns 20, a look at the rating's controversial origins

RATINGS | This is the story of how a gooey green guy in a microwave and a pagan witchdoctor with a beating heart in his hand changed the way Hollywood makes movies.

It has been two decades since the summer of 1984, when "Gremlins" and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" caused an uproar among some parents who took their young children to the PG-rated films and walked out wishing the rating had suggested more guidance than just "parental guidance suggested."

The solution became the PG-13 rating.

"I created the problem and I also supplied the solution ... I invented the rating," said Steven Spielberg, the producer of "Gremlins" and director of "Temple of Doom."

With no middle-ground between PG and R, the ratings board of the 1980s frequently wrestled with the right way to classify movies that should and should not be viewed by children. The flaw in the Motion Picture Association of America's rat-

STUCK IN THE MIDDLE: At Universal Studios Citywalk, half the movies are PG-13.

The ratings board of the 1980s frequently wrestled with the right way to classify movies ... the flaw in the MPAA's rating system was that it lumped all children, from infants to 17-year-olds, into the same group.

ing system was that it lumped all children, from infants to 17-year-olds, into the same group.

Maybe the "Gremlin" who met his steaming, grisly demise inside that kitchen appliance, or the chest-popping human sacrifice that put the doom in "Temple of Doom," were too graphic for grade-school kids, but what about the teenage couples looking for a scary reason to cuddle in the movie theater?

Joe Dante, the director of "Gremlins," blames the backlash on the early trailers. They focused mostly on Gizmo, a friendly, teddy-bearlike creature which multiplies in water. But it neglected Gizmo's clones, which become murderous troublemakers.

But it became a hit, collecting $150 million; "Temple of Doom" earned $180 million. Clearly there would be more films like this. But there remained the problem of how to keep little kids away while attracting adults and teens.

Spielberg suggested the PG-13 rating to Jack Valenti, who took the idea to the National Association of Theater Owners, Hollywood's writer, actor and director guilds, the studio bosses and religious organizations.

Aug. 10, 1984 marked the first debut of a PG-13 movie: "Red Dawn," about a Communist invasion of America and the high-school rebels who fight back.

"Kids don't want to feel like they're seeing pap," Dante said.

"People will go out of their way to put one dirty word in it just to get the rating that they need to give the picture some legitimacy, so the kids won't feel like they're going to see their little brother's movie."

Cool Sounds for Hot Times

MUSIC | It doesn't exactly mark a return of the G-funk era, but supergroup 213 has used its first album, "The Hard Way" (TVT) to nicely update the distinct Southern California sound its members helped popularize a decade ago.

Snoop Dogg, Warren G and Nate Dogg each bring the baggage of up-and-down careers to the long-overdue collaboration, which is exactly the messy, frivolous ear candy we've come to expect from them.

Snoop, the overexposed superstar, betrays his boredom at times while imbuing rhymes with a veteran's irony and winking wisdom.

Warren G, who's always been more of a producer than rapper, can seem stuck in 1994 with his earnest approach to lines like "not 'cuz your beauty, it's your booty I'm attracted."

Nate Dogg's choruses have lifted one hip-hop hit after another up the charts, and he seems relieved to have time to sing full verses. He's showcased on the nonsensical but fabulous chorus of "Absolutely" as well as "Keep it Gangsta."

The trio deals out some complete failures, including the sluggish, juvenile "Joystice" and "Lonely Girl." And they're saved by top-notch production on less lyrically interesting tracks. Whizzing Neptunesstyle beats propel "213 Is da Gangsta Cliche," and "Lil Girl" floats atop church-organ flourishes.

Though there's less true funk flavor than expected, "The Hard Way" is airy summertime gangsta rap that's actually hard to

Viewers Flip For Olympics

After a slow start, the Games garner gold from homebodies

NUMBERS | Going into the 2004 Summer Olympics, advertisers and media analysts worried that distractions including athlete doping scandals and intense security would scare away viewers.

The outlook wasn't helped when initial coverage featured empty stadium seats and an early loss by much-hyped U.S. swimmer Michael Phelps.

But at the halfway point, NBC looks to have turned itself from ratings underdog to success story. Through Saturday night, NBC's prime-time coverage from Athens on its main NBC network was up 14 percent, compared with the equivalent nine-day period for the 2000 Sydney Olympics.

NBC and the advertisers "have definitely got to be happy with the results so far," said Jason Maltby, co-executive director of national TV for MindShare, a media buying agency whose clients include official Olympic sponsor Kodak.

In the past, he added, there had been "too many canned profiles that seemed to go on too long. This time, they seem to be focusing on the real drama of the sports."

One surprise is that the saturation cable coverage — NBC is providing 1,210 hours of coverage on all its platforms — hasn't diluted the audience for prime time. NBC said that, in fact, cable appears to be drawing viewers who want to watch sports that in the past wouldn't have been televised. Then, through aggressive cross-promotion, the producers are getting those cable viewers to tune in to the prime-time NBC broadcast.

Blanket coverage has raised awareness of more obscure Olympic events.

Likewise, heavy traffic to NBC's Olympics Web site appears to be pushing audiences to watch, rather than driving them away because they know the results.

NBC attributed the improvement to a number of factors. For one thing, the Games are being held in August, when children are out of school and adults are more likely to be on vacation.

Perhaps more significant has been the performance of U.S. athletes and some dramatic story lines. Dick Ebersol, chairman of NBC Universal Sports & Olympics, said Friday through a spokeswoman that "it's always about the athletes.

"Here, the U.S. has had great teams in both swimming and gymnastics. In Sydney, it was only swimming." ELIZABETH JENSEN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Three's the Charm for UPN

NEW SEASON | The fall series that UPN has on deck for later in the season look really good. Extremely promising. Nary a dud. Granted, UPN has just three new shows: "Second Time Around," "Kevin Hill" and "Veronica Mars."

On the other hand, this is UPN, which a year ago unveiled

"The Mullets," and further back has given the world such kibble as "Shasta McNasty" and "Homeboys In Outer Space."

"Veronica Mars" stars Kristen Bell as a 17-year-old who is determined to get to the bottom of a scandalous murder case that cost Veronica's father his job as the town's sheriff and turned her into an outcast at her high school.

"Second Time Around" is the season's classiest sitcom, and potentially its sexiest one. Boris Kodjoe plays a serious-minded architect and Nicole Parker plays a larky artist who were briefly married years earlier, but now, both 30ish, have said "I do" again.

"Kevin Hill" is a drama with plenty to work with: a good-looking young lawyer on the fast track whose career hits a wall when he is handed custody of his dead cousin's 6-month-old daughter.

In the title role, Taye Diggs is, by turns, tough, comic, tender, flummoxed — and never less than a hunk.

Come back, UPN; all is forgiven!

WHAT COMES AROUND: Robert Fazekas, the Hungarian gold medalist in the men's discus, was stripped of his title for failing to provide a drug test sample in an apparent attempt to beat the screening system.

Life's a Beach for U.S. Duo

Walsh, May complete dominant volleyball run with gold medal

BEACH VOLLEYBALL | They raced to the stands and grabbed American flags as "Born in the USA" blared over the speakers at the Olympics' rowdiest venue.

Kerri Walsh and Misty May ended a splendid night on the beach with a gold medal, a fitting finale for the most dominant run in the history of beach volleyball.

The top-ranked U.S. beach volleyball duo beat second-seeded Brazilians Shelda Bede and Adriana Behar 21-17, 21-11 on Tuesday night, and did it without ever dropping a set in seven matches.

Adriana and Shelda, the all-time winningest pair on the international FIVB tour, won their second straight silver medal.

With the 6-foot-3 Walsh dominating at the net and the quick May scrambling and diving for every dig, they were favorites since last year, when they began an unprecedented 90-match, 15-tournament winning streak.

"We have so much confidence in each other, we never doubted ourselves," May said.

"We deserve it," Walsh added.

GAME, SET, MATCH: American Misty May returns a spike during the gold medal beach volleyball finals against Brazil. May and Walsh won in straight sets Tuesday.

On match point in a surprisingly lopsided final, Walsh hammered a spike just inside the line. Walsh fell to her knees as May ran to embrace her and both fell backward in the sand.

Earlier, Americans Holly McPeak and Elaine Youngs won the bronze medal, beating Australia's Natalie Cook and Nicole Sanderson 21-18, 15-21, 15-9. CHRIS DUNCAN (AP)

American stuns field in 100-meter hurdles after Felicien crashes

TRACK | Joanna Hayes screamed as she crossed the finish line of the 100-meter hurdles in Olympic-record time. About 90 meters behind her, world champion Perdita Felicien lay flat on the ground, crying in disbelief.

Felicien got off to a bad start and stepped on the first hurdle, tumbling to the ground and taking Irina Shevchenko of Russia with her. All Felicien could do was watch Hayes win in 12.37 seconds.

Paraguay Denies Iraq Shot at Gold

Soccer team to compete against Italy for bronze

SOCCER | The Iraqi soccer team's improbable run at an Olympic gold medal ended Tuesday night with a 3-1 semifinal loss to Paraguay. The Iraqis still have a chance for a bronze, which would be their war-weary nation's first medal in 44 years.

Paraguay made history of its own, getting two goals from Jose Cardozo and one from Fredy Bareiro to advance to Saturday's gold-medal game against Argentina, a 3-0 winner over Italy. Gold or silver, it will be the first Olympic medal of any sort for Paraguay.

Iraq and Italy will play for the bronze Friday night.

"It was the will of God," said Iraq's coach, Adnan Hamad.

Just qualifying for the Olympics was a feat for the Iraqis, who have been unable to play home games since war began in March 2003. They clinched a berth in May, just three months after their country was reinstated by the International Olympic Committee.

The team's Olympic success enchanted fans worldwide and gave Iraqi citizens a rare cause for jubilation. DAVID CRARY (AP)

Italians Stun U.S. With Comeback In Water Polo

WATER POLO | Manuela Zanchi scored with two seconds left to give Italy a 6-5 upset victory over the world champion Americans on Tuesday in the semifinals of the Olympic water polo competition.

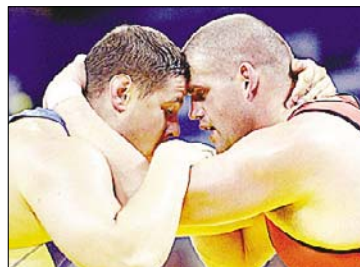

The Italians advanced to the finals against Greece, a 6-2 winner over Australia later Tuesday. The U.S., which led 4-2 after three periods, will face Australia for bronze in a rematch of the 2000 final won by the Aussies. "I'm very shocked," said American Brenda Villa, part of the silver-medal squad four years ago. (AP)

Gardner Disposes of 3 Challengers

WRESTLING | On a day when Rulon Gardner escaped any surprises on the mat, there was one waiting for him in the stands.

lifetime accomplishment. Gardner was patient, technically sound and just aggressive enough to hold off three upset attempts Tuesday.

If he can beat Kazakhstan's Georgi Tsursumia in the semifinals Wednesday, he will go for another super heavyweight gold later in the day, with a chance to become the first U.S. Greco-Roman wrestler to win two golds. ALAN ROBINSON (AP)

Russians Feel Cheated Out of Gymnastics Gold

Scores for Khorkina, Nemov prompt letters of complaint to IOC

GYMNASTICS | The Russian Olympic delegation joined the growing list of Olympic malcontents Tuesday, arguing that its two biggest stars — Svetlana Khorkina and Alexei Nemov — got cheated in the gymnastics competition.

The Russians, who sent letters to the International Gymnastics Federation and to International Olympic Committee President Jacques Rogge, said they aren't expecting any changes in the outcomes of the competitions and have no plans to go to the Court of Arbitration for Sport.

In event finals Monday, Nemov performed a sterling high bar routine that looked much more difficult than anything the other nine gymnasts did, but finished fifth. Fans booed for 10 minutes after his score was posted and Nemov said he thought the score was too low.

Khorkina finished second in the all-around to American Carly Patterson last Thursday, and also complained about the scoring.

Aussies Join Cuba in Baseball Final

BASEBALL | Brendan Kingman's sixth-inning single sent Australia to a stunning 1-0 victory Tuesday over Japan, putting the Aussies into the gold medal game against Cuba.

The Cubans escaped another upset bid, scoring six runs in the eighth and then holding off a ninth-inning threat to beat Canada 8-5.

The Australians and Cubans play Wednesday after Japan faces Canada for the bronze.

Australia's Brendan Kingman catches the final out in a 1-0 victory over Japan.

The Canadians scored two runs in the top of the ninth and had runners on second and third when it ended. (AP)

Clay Finishes 2nd In the Decathlon

DECATHLON | Bryan Clay, the little guy among the giants of the decathlon, chased Roman Sebrle to the finish in one of the most powerful American performances in the event's history.

Sebrle, the world record holder from the Czech Republic, won the gold medal Tuesday with 8,893 points — an Olympic record.

The 24-year-old Clay was second with 8,820 points, the third-highest ever by a U.S. decathlete. (AP)

Md. Little Leaguers Lose to Texas

LITTLE LEAGUE | Matt Daniels had a homer and four RBIs, and tossed a two-hitter to lead Richmond, Texas, to a 13-1 win over Preston, Md., at the Little League World Series on Tuesday.

Texas (3-0) joined North Carolina and California in the United States semifinals. Maryland is 1-2 and needs help to advance.

Daniels went 3-for-4, adding a double and a run scored. He also struck out 12 and walked one.

Randal Grichuk, who also played in last year's Little League World Series, hit an RBI single and Daniels added his two-run homer to give Texas a 6-1 lead in the third. Texas scored seven runs in the sixth and finished the game with 12 hits.

Maryland's only run came on Davonta DeShields' solo homer in the first. (AP)

Gardner Awaits Breakout Season

Redskins wide receiver tries to bounce back from lackluster year

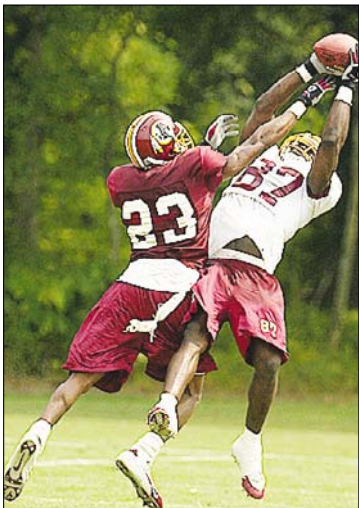

REDSKINS | Rod Gardner couldn't wait for the 2003 season to begin, buoyed by a 1,000-yard season the year before and the addition of receiver Laveranues Coles.

Then the Redskins' fourth-year wideout couldn't wait for it to end. When it did, his numbers had been cut nearly in half. His reputation dropped as well.

"It got frustrating," Gardner said. "Compared to what I did in my second year, it was nowhere close. This year I'm trying to recapture that and bring it back."

If Gardner is ready for a breakout year, it hasn't shown in the pre-season games. In three games he has only one catch for 8 yards. But the Redskins now see the 6-foot-2, 213-pound Gardner as a nice fit for new coach Joe Gibbs' offense, because of his size and strength.

"He's a proven product," Gibbs said. "He can make plays. If you get the ball in his area, he's big enough to overpower some defensive backs. Rod's been very impressive."

Washington will try to isolate Gardner on linebackers and free him with play-action passes. He'll also run more posts and corner routes.

Receivers coach Stan Hixon said: "The ability is there. He just has to flourish in this offense. We've been impressed with how he's adapted to this offense." (AP)

Chop, Drop and Roll

The custom feel of the Dodge Magnum RT

ROAD TEST | Sometime between being hip and breaking a hip, even kool kats need a family car.

Let's get right to it: What makes the Dodge Magnum work is its subversive, hot-rod styling, which has a distinct rockabilly vibe. At 197.7 inches long, the Magnum isn't particularly big, about the same length as a Chevy Monte Carlo. But its massive, blocky styling lends it that look of naked bulk that characterized the great lead sleds of the '50s and '60s.

Meanwhile, the styling vernacular is right out of the California rod-and-custom playbook. One of hot-rodding's favorite tricks is to cut a few inches out of a car's roof pillars and lower the roof, giving the car a slightly desperate, James Dean squint. This is the "chop" in the phrase "chopped and channeled." The Magnum's chop-top roofline, glowering greenhouse, low stance and road-scraping body skirts all convey a wonderful, retro delinquency.

Drop this thing 4 inches, put on a set of Laker pipes, some Coker whitewalls and disc hubcaps, and you can be the star of your own B-movie fantasy. Calling Mamie Van Doren.

It's also worth noting that there is, sure enough, something sinister about the Magnum. In some lights it looks very authoritarian, like something from the Big Brother motor pool. It could be the smoked-out rear windows, behind which all sorts of truncheon-wielding attitude adjustment might take place. Dodge began selling the RT this summer, and will begin selling the Magnum SXT (with a 3.5-liter, 250-horsepower V6 mated to a four-speed automatic) with a police package coming this fall and a Hemi-powered pursuit cruiser next year. Evildoers, beware.

Car Care

Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats regularly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

I got a screw stuck in one of my passenger side tires. Is it worth-while to plug the hole or would I be better off buying a new tire?

Whether to plug a tire depends on where the damage is positioned. It must be within the two outside treads, otherwise the repair will not be not safe. The plug must also be sealed from the inside, which requires removing the tire from the rim. So unless the tire is in really good shape, it may not be cost-effective to repair it.

Is it better to send a new car through a car wash or to hand-clean it?

Actually, most people do considerably more damage to their paint by handwashing than car washes ever would. People use sponges. Sponges trap dirt in their pores and scratch the finish. People wash in a circular motion. This puts fine scratches in the surface of the paint, which refract light in such a manner that it makes the paint look dull. Many drivers use household detergents — the list goes on and on.

CUSTOMER STILL ALWAYS RIGHT

The latest American Customer Satisfaction Index, compiled by the University of Michigan, shows that satisfaction among owners of domestic brands continues to lag that of Japanese and European companies. The survey, released Tuesday, scores brands on a scale of 0 to 100. (AP)

The grand master of film title sequences is honored in London

The jarring movie title sequence of Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho" and the swirling graphics of "Vertigo" are classic images familiar to film buffs everywhere.

Now, the first major retrospective of the work of their creator, Saul Bass, is being held by the London Design Museum, which calls him "one of the greatest graphic designers of the 20th century."

Bass, a New Yorker, worked with such movie masters as Hitchcock and Martin Scorsese, Otto Preminger and Stanley Kubrick to capture a film's essence, turning the opening lists of names into a spectacle that engaged the audience in the film from its first frame.

He believed the title sequence should consist of a single image in a highly reductive form, "terribly simple and metaphorical, but at the same time provocative."

"We thought it would be a fantastic exhibition and we asked the Saul Bass archive at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in Los Angeles for loans," Donna Loveday, curator for the Design Museum, told The Associated Press.

"The result surpasses our expectations. We didn't expect we could show so many title sequences, about 25 to 30, and lenders were generous with films and posters, letters and storyboards," Loveday said.

Bass, who died in Los Angeles

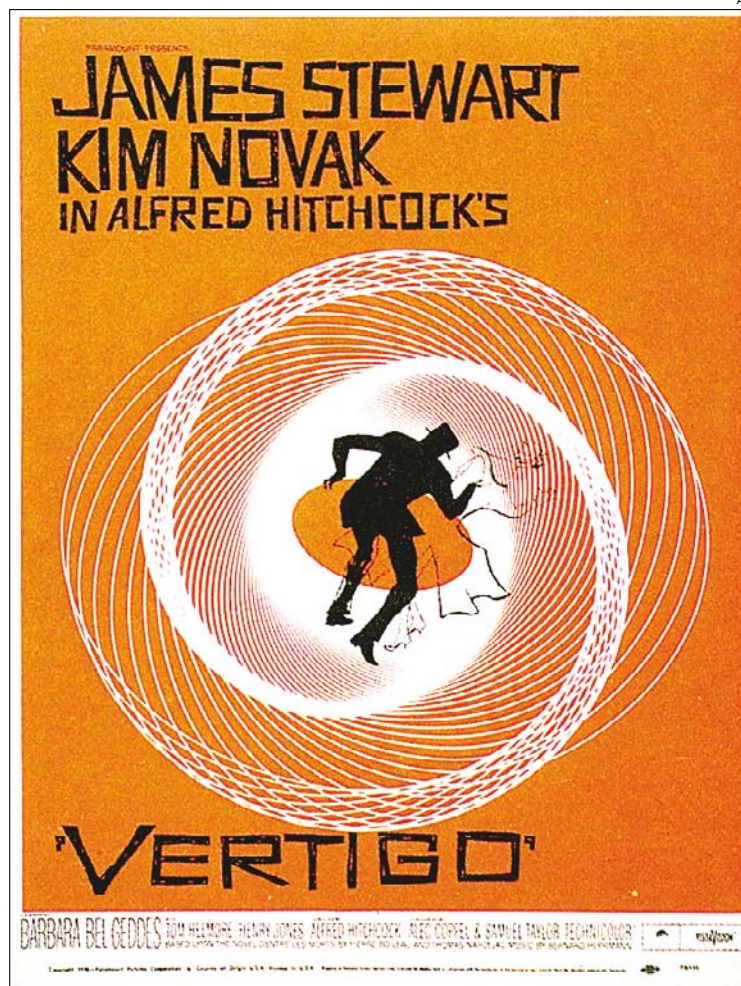

Title Attraction

in 1996, appears in a filmed interview.

Other famous Bass sequences include a jagged cut-out of an arm for Preminger's 1956 "The Man with the Golden Arm," about a drug-addict musician and poker dealer; and a segmented body with the title scattered over it for Preminger's "Anatomy of a Murder" in 1959.

Bass used a revolving stagecoach wheel for "The Big Country," in 1958, a cat on a city street for 1962's "A Walk on the Wild Side" and spiraling circles for "Vertigo" in 1958.

Bass believed the title sequence should consist of a single image in a highly reductive form, "terribly simple and metaphorical."

Born in 1920 in the Bronx borough of New York City, Bass studied with Hungarian designer and design theorist Gyorgy Kepes, who taught at Laszlo Moholy-Nagy's New Bauhaus design school in Chicago and encouraged Bass's interest in visual language.

Bass opened his own design studio in Los Angeles in 1952, and his first movie title sequence — a flame superimposed on a rose for Preminger's "Carmen Jones" in 1954 — made him the first graphic designer to be granted a screen credit by the Directors' Guild of America.

Bass won a 1968 Oscar for his short film "Why Man Creates."

His work for Scorsese included titles for "The Age of Innocence" in 1993 and "Cape Fear" in 1991.

In a message to the museum, Scorsese said Bass always understood how a movie worked and his titles "embedded the mysteries of those films, but somehow never gave away their secrets."

The exhibition runs through Oct. 10. GRAHAM HEATHCOTE (AP)

U.S. Basketball

Post columnist MIKE WISE was online Tuesday from Athens to discuss the U.S. men's and women's basketball teams | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

The media has been critical of the play of the U.S. men's basketball team in Athens. Should there be more discussion of the NBA players who chose not to play due to being busy or scared of a terrorist attack?

Yes, there should be more criticism of the players who did not make it instead of doling out all the blame on the players that actually came. But they knew for a long time Shaquille O'Neal and Kevin Garnett weren't coming, so I think much fault — if the gold medal is not won — should go to USA Basketball for its inability to construct a team worthy of winning the biggest international tournament in four years.

Who are the men's team playing next? How's Allen Iverson's thumb?

Iverson's thumb is still hurting — from trying to hitchhike back home. Seriously, I don't think it will affect him that much. He's such a competitor.

The U.S. meets Spain on Thursday in a medal-round game.

Seeing how well the U.S. women's team is playing, will they get enough credit at home for the WNBA?

What's the WNBA? All right, bad joke.

I wonder if Olympic success for our women's team will translate to an attendance spike for the WNBA when it reconvenes its season in September. You hope it will, but you never know.

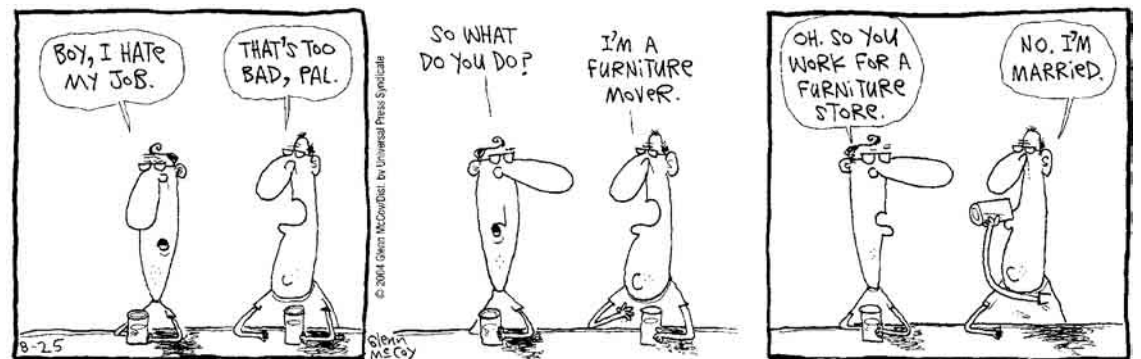

How about sending the NCAA champs to the Olympics? I think UConn, including its graduated seniors, would put on a great show.

They would not win, but they would put on a great show. I'm of the opinion you need to take a couple of stars and meld them with Sixth Man of the Year-types, a blend of role players and stars. If they go down, so be it. But at least they would all give their right arm to be an Olympian. That's not the case now.

O'Reilly Isn't McCarthy

WHO WAS THAT COWARD at the Hartford Courant who wrote that seething film review of "OutFoxed" in Tuesday's Express equating Bill O'Reilly to Sen. Joe McCarthy of the 1950s? O'Reilly can certainly obviate with the best of them, but to equate him with McCarthyism is really excessive. McCarthy outright lied by conjuring up phantoms and scenarios about alleged Communists in government and throughout the country. McCarthy frothed at the mouth strictly for publicity (Al Gore comes to mind!). O'Reilly can hardly be accused of stooping to such lengths. Besides, O'Reilly is often funny, amused at his own success and highly entertained by the reactions he gets from the elitist left. McCarthy was never funny, just really scary. Big difference!

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Changes are favored, but don't do anything too unexpected or too sudden. Be willing to fulfill certain expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It'll be up to you to press important community matters forward. Some others may be looking to you for personal guidance as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll have a hankering to get out and about — but soon you are likely to make a mission out of a pleasure-trip. Something big is afoot.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Answers to questions you've been asking for some time are likely to be available — but be patient and persistent at all times.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone may be trying to limit you, but it is essential that you don't let a knee-jerk reaction threaten your reputation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The time has come for you to forgive or forget — but either way, you will get beyond a stubborn personal conflict.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You can make a special occasion out of the most ordinary of days — and a loved one will show more than appreciation if you're lucky.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You don't want to end the week on a sour note, so strive to patch up any serious differences before day's end.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may find yourself waiting for something you thought would be in your hands at the outset. Patience is a virtue — and can be rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll notice subtle changes in the rhythm of things before others — and this can give you a great personal advantage in business.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A long and hard goodbye may be unavoidable — but you and that special someone have much to look forward to in the weeks to come.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A mistake can be reversed before day's end, so that you needn't dwell on it throughout the week-end. Be prepared to make a new start.
